State Seizes Waterfront and Will Patch Famous Shrine Together

HARBOR WILL BE MADE LIKE 1620

Tenants of Wharves and Houses Must Move
Before December 1

After issuing the whole Plymouth waterfront the Pilgrim Tercentenary commission yesterday ordered all the owners and tenants of the wharves and houses to vacate them before December 1.

The commission will advertise this week for bids from contractors to move Plymouth Rock or that part of it which has for 150 years been a national shrine—back to where nature originally placed it and fastening it there for all time.

PLYMOUTH WATERFRONT AND ROCK AS IT LOOKS TODAY

PIRGIM TERCENTENARY COMMISSION—BIRDS EYE VIEW OF PRESENT CONDITIONS FOR PLYMOUTH ROCK, PLYMOUTH MASSACHUSETTS—A. D. 1919

The numbers on the sketch show: 1—Town Brook, 2—Brewster street, 3—Craig Wharf, 4—Long Wharf, 5—Pilgrim Wharf, 6—Cole's Hill, 7—Plymouth Rock, under its canopy.

recorded all the legal papers that give the Commonwealth permanent possession of the shore of Plymouth from Brewster street on the north to Town Brook on the south and back from the water as far as Carver street. To make that street of uniform width at the present, it forms around Cole's Hill, one plot was also taken at the corner of 34th street, and the house which stands there now will be removed.

Tomorrow the estate owners of the property seized will meet the commission to discuss how much less they will take for it than the fantastic price they demanded when the Pilgrim Tercentenary folks came knocking for a friendly sale. There were an average of $25 per cent. above the assessed value—except in the case of the plot owned by the defunct electric company, for which a couple of thousand dollars less than the value the assessors set on it.
This latter was the only plot of property the commission bought outright.

TO START AT ONCE.
The commission will make liberal offers for what it has taken. Those who don't see fit to come to an understanding in conference will be chided to take the question of the price they shall get to the Superior Court where a jury will settle it, according to the prescribed eminent domain procedure.

Hills will be advertised for, on Tuesday, for starting at once the waterfront changes which will eventually restore the little harbor and its surroundings to the way they looked when the Pilgrim first glimpsed them, 300 years ago. A fortnight must be allowed bidders, according to custom, to prepare their estimates.
But no time will be lost after that.

Such of the work as can be done immediately will be finished before the semi-official observance of the tercentenary of the landing, December 21. The rest will be completed, the commission intends, before next June, when the national celebration of the tercentenary, with its spectacular and outdoor features, begins.

The first thing to be done is to extend Craig wharf, which is about at the foot of Brewster street, out into the harbor and deepen the channel to it from the end of Long wharf, to which it now leads. Craig wharf will be made the principal landing place of the town, its criss modernity hidden from the primal wildness of the little harbor, when it has been restored, by the wooded slopes which will top the tiny peninsula to be put back in the place the shifting tides have washed it from since the Pilgrims sought its shelter.

Next, Long wharf, the present landing for larger craft, will be torn away, and Pilgrim wharf, which runs out into the water straight from the rock. This will leave the base of the rock in its mud bed, exposed to view again. Then the top piece will be set back upon it and secured there, and the stone "canopy" which has sheltered it will be demolished.

BROKEN BY ACCIDENT.
The top was broken off by accident, back in 1770. Patriots of the town thought it unworthy that so famous a stone should be left lying in the sea of the harbor's edge and hatched twenty yoke of oxen to tie it up into the town where it might be kept, as a memorial for all men to see. The strain was too much, though, and the upper third or so of the boulder parted from the base. Incidentally, this was taken as a good omen at the time, for the colonists were already growing restless under British rule and in the breaking summer of the rock which the forefathers first stepped upon a sign of a coming split from the mother country.

The bottom part of the rock fell back in the mud and settled there.
For fifty years the top—the Plymouth Rock everybody knows—stood in Town Square, in front of the Town House. Then it was moved to a place yet known.

CHURCH BACKS PASTOR-SLAYER

Inn Keeper Shot by Minister in Ontario Liquor Raid

Windsor, Ont., Nov. 6.—Whether Rev. J. O. L. Spurgeon, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church of Sandwich and a leader of prohibition enforcement agents along the border, meant to kill for the slaying of an innkeeper of the Ontario Hotel, the loyalty of the church was the problem, was to be determined by the result of a church meeting which was held in session at a late hour yesterday and the pastor, who was confronted by three other officers who were with him, was asked to sign a statement.

Spurgeon's action and several frank admissions, which he made yesterday, caused the church to be divided. Local police said they had been unable to find the pastor yesterday, but that they had been drawn upon him.

Spurgeon was shot through the border when he was in the liquor store, which had been raided by prohibition agents. The pastor was shot in the back of the head, and was taken to the hospital.

GIRL SCOUTS SHOW SKILL IN PAGEANT

Open Drive With Demonstration of Their Ability as Home Makers

CAN COOK AND TAKE CARE OF THE BABY

Living Picture Depicts the Activities of the Boston Members

Monday's scout is at the table, Sunday clothes to rise and scrub.
Tuesday's scout will read and sing and fry fresh pancakes for you.
Wednesday's scout is bent on flirts to catch the hole and darn the right.
Thursday is scout service day.
For helping your neighbor in many a job.
Friday's scout is rosy and strong; She camps and hikes the whole day long.
Saturday's scout is happy and gay. For this is her laughing day.
While Sunday's scout presents to you Her uniformed look in the family page.
But all Girl Scouts throughout the land Are ready each day to lend a hand.

This is the merry jangle chanted by Miss Marjorie Towne, as Uncle Sam, accompanied by Miss Dorothy Kane, leader, in the present evening's afternoon on the east side of the police, to depict the activities of each Girl Scout house-keeper.

The pageantry marked the opening of the "Busy Week" to raise funds for the training of the scout girls and to increase the membership of the organization. Forty girls from various Boston troops participated in the living pictures. Captain Rachel Monks, under whose direction the pageant was prepared, had charge of the demonstration, portraying the educational training afforded.

WHAT THE SCOUTS DO.
The activities of the housekeeper and the home training each day of week were shown, and a number of scout songs set to popular air were sung under the leadership of Miss Lillian Watts.
The drive throughout the city started off with a great bang. The Girl Scouts, in evidence everywhere, groups of girls on the Common demonstrated their ability in camp life, signaling and woodcraft. The demonstrators were busy, too, to substitute the money needed.
And the girls in the pageant showed themselves to be past masters in washing and mending clothes, cooking for babies, cooking sugar dishes, which were passed for sampling among audiences, in helping one another, and in camp life. The pageant was repeated on the broad steps of the public library at 1:30 o'clock. It will be given everywhere in the State where there are Girl Scout troops, sometime during Girl Scout week.

MUST HAVE LEADERS.
"Great educational and recreational movements like the Girl Scouts are best sustained by institutions," said Miss Alice Sandford, state director, yesterday. "The Girl Scouts must have the cooperation and support of the community in all its efforts, and the future of the movement is in its hands."

The lack of efficient leaders is one of the handicaps of the Scout movement and can only be overcome when there are sufficient instructors and camps to train the girls. There are hundreds of girls waiting to become Scouts, who cannot do so because of lack of funds to train their leaders. It is for these funds that the drive being held is made.
Heavily active life in the open, household economy, child care, home nursing, and first aid and practical patriotism and civic activities are the three great principles of the Girl Scout movement.
The better womanhood through proper direction and training of girls is the aim of the organization. President Millard gave a luncheon in their honor at the Elroy Palace.

CALLING FOR BAN ON CIDER

Movement to Force Congress to Act Is Urged in Boston

Cider will soon be one of the forbidden drinks if a movement discussed at yesterday's session of the Twentieth Century Club is effective. Pressure on the dominant political party to have the beverage incriminated among those barred by the Volstead Act was proposed. If that failed, a woman's party was suggested as an alternative weapon to force action by Congress.
"In my opinion, either of the two major political parties would dare to introduce such a plan," asked John Graham Brooks, president of the club. "No, but if there was a woman's party they would," said Miss Amy Woods, a welfare worker.
Charges that reported statistics on an increase of drug addicts since prohibition went into effect were propaganda circulated by the liquor interests were made by Miss Woods in her talk before the club.
"There are no comparative figures," she said, "because prior to prohibition there were no statistics about drug users."

Although acknowledgment that whiskey was still obtainable and that a special kind of perfume was being manufactured for drinking purposes, Miss Woods asserted that the benefits of prohibition had outweighed any evil results. Some evidence, she said, were to be found in the decreased patronage of the saloons, which were formerly used as "hideouts" for bootleggers.
Liquor interests, Miss Woods declared, were disappointed in the recent vote on light wine and beer in the State, which she said, was a much larger majority than she expected. It could be used for propaganda purposes in Washington.
Charles E. Vance, a Swiss journalist, told the members of the club that his country sought no territorial acquisition, but alliances.
"Our only foreign policy," he said, "is one of racial tolerance."
"Although in no way renouncing the cause of perpetual neutrality," Switzerland, he said, agreed to join some member of the League of Nations.

OUTLINE G. O. P. ECONOMY PLAN

Will Reduce by Half 475,000 Civil Employees of Government

By Universal Service.

Washington, Nov. 6.—A reform by which the unprecedented number of government civil employees, now said to aggregate 475,000, will be reduced by half, were announced today by Clarence B. Miller, secretary of the Republican National Committee, as one of the first economies that will be undertaken by the new Republican administration.
This reform, according to Mr. Miller, coupled with the imposition of a high tariff schedule, will be sufficient to make up for a considerable part of the deficit that will be caused by the advent and the Friday the 13th service he will preach on "Apostles of the Kingdom."

ROSLINDALE TO GET NEW PARK

Organizations Objecting to City's Plan Have Carried Their Point

Roslindale is to have a new park. The controversy over having Adams square has been settled and work is progressing.
The original plan, as drawn by A. A. Shortell, landscape architect of the Boston Park Board, called for an oval of granite. Objectors that it would spoil the beauty of the park and that it is a part of the square, and a number of Roslindale organizations, headed by the Community Club, of which Mrs. Perdy and Lasky is president, and the Irving W. Adams Post of the American Legion, took up the matter with Mayor Peters and Park Commissioner James J. Shea.
"About two weeks ago," explained the commissioner yesterday, "we had a meeting at the Municipal Building, at which representatives of the Community Club and the Irving W. Adams Post, voiced their objection to the original plan, and on Monday a special committee appeared at the Park Commission's office and submitted their ideas as to how the plan should be altered. Their objections were adopted and a revision of the plan was prepared by the Shortell and Park Commission."

"The revision of the plan eliminated the large central oval of granite, and also eliminated the original plan, to a walk which runs into the city and for the side to each of the smaller triangles into the large triangle."

"Another improvement in the revised plan is the substitution of a better surface for the level surface originally called for. A prominent feature of the northern part of the triangle will be its highest point, and it will give the little but an increasing appearance to one approach from the city."

"Trees and shrubs will be planted by department employees just as soon as the landscaping is completed."

FARMERS LOSE AS PRICES SOAR

Agriculture, Says Grange Head, Is Facing Crisis in America

"City prices are soaring while farmers are losing money. Cut the cost to the consumer, and the farmer will get less than he does now. The city must get enough to eat at any price."
Such is the endless chain of events forecast in New England by J. J. Lowell, national master of the Farmers of Hubbard, who is here from Providence, R. I., to attend the annual convention of the order this week. Boston will entertain a gathering of 15,000 to 20,000 food producers and their guests, representing thirty-three states, and said, "Grangers to be the largest assembly of organized farmers that has ever met in New England."

"Agriculture," said Mr. Lowell last night, "faces a crisis. I need not discuss your city food prices. You know even better than I do the high—often exorbitant—figures you have to pay."

"But while you are suffering from these farmers out in New York State are selling potatoes at 75 cents a bushel, and onions at 50 cents a bag, and cabbages at three dollars a ton. Can you imagine that? Yet it is a fact."

"You want lower prices for food in the city. I don't blame you for seeking relief. But what is going to happen to the farmer if his income falls any lower? Many a producer is selling his land for a living because he can't make a living on it."

IMPERILS NEW ENGLAND.

"And what of the New England 'crisis'?" The speaker of the day, Mr. Lowell, said that the conditions may prove to be the death of the farming industry all along the Atlantic seaboard.
Problems of transportation, crop moving, marketing, credit, marketing, and the migration of farmers from the country to the city, during the last day of the week, the speaker said, will be discussed at the 7:30 o'clock service he will confer on nearly 12,000 grangers, and elaborate stage settings, at a secret session in the morning. The showings of the building, where the showings are to be held, will contain a big exhibition of New Hampshire agriculture, Maine potatoes, Vermont maple sugar, Massachusetts cranberries, and other agricultural products.

Five tons of maple sugar has already arrived. Quite a task to eat all of this in one day—year! But it's a safe guess that there won't be a crumb left.

HANCOCK ALUMNI ELECTS

Other officers elected were: Mrs. Anne Alverman, vice-president; Mrs. A. A. O'Brien, secretary; and Mrs. Florence Alverman, treasurer.
Miss Gertrude Bigelow, principal of the High School, was the principal speaker. Following luncheon and a business meeting there was a social hour.

WILSON WON'T FEE DEBS

Washington, Nov. 6.—President Wilson has no intention of pardoning Eugene V. Debs, Socialist candidate for President, now in Atlanta Prison, during the remainder of his term of office. It was authoritatively learned from official sources today.

The President is reported to feel that the pardon would tend to break down the morale of the country, especially in view of the prominence of the prisoner.

TO AID DISABLED VETS

Manchester, N. H., Nov. 6.—Manchester is to open her schools for vocational training for disabled soldiers. Plans have been perfected by W. J. Egan of Boston, member of the board of vocational training, Superintendent of Instruction Herbert P. Taylor, and Deputy Superintendent Frank Morris, whereby approximately 35 disabled soldiers may receive vocational training in the evening schools of the city in special classes.
